

REPEAL OF COMPULSORY
FISCAL YEAR SUPPORTED BY COUNTY'S MUNICIPAL OFFICIALS

A special meeting of the Oxford County Municipal Officers' Association was held Tuesday evening at the Firemen's Hall, South Paris, to discuss the possibility of having the law requiring all municipalities to adopt a July 1-June 30 fiscal year repealed at the coming Special Session of the 104th Legislature. The bill was introduced by Rep. Louis J. Albert of Lewiston, at the regular session. This bill was withdrawn, then later reintroduced and passed, apparently without a special hearing to give municipal officials a chance to appear against it.

The meeting was called to order by Stuart Martin, Mexico town manager, Association president. Twenty three of the 32 towns in the County were represented. Representatives Brewster Page of Fryburg, Lowell Henley of Norway, and Jacob Immonen, West Paris, were present. Mr. Immonen and Mr. Henley spoke briefly as did several of the town officials. After a discussion it was decided to "Adopt a resolution to instruct the County Legislative Delegation to seek repeal of the law requiring all municipalities to operate on a July 1-June 30 fiscal year." The resolution was adopted without opposition.

Claude Cushman, Woodstock selectman, issued an invitation to the association to hold the September meeting at Woodstock. The invitation was accepted.

PLACE NEEDED FOR MINI RACE STRIP
Everyone says that the kids ought to have a place where they can go to get off the streets, but no one does anything about it. Don Young of Western Auto has offered to give to the town of Bethel his 12x5 foot racetrack and dragstrip. A small charge would have to be made to defray the cost of electricity.

The problem is that a place is needed for this gift—with space big enough for the 12 by five foot racetrack and a few people. The hope is that someone in town will come up with a solution to this problem. The kids would like the support of the townspeople.

SCHOOL DIRECTORS MEET

beginning drawing at Santa Fe Junior College in 1969. Mrs. Curtis presently resides in Bryant Pond.

Mrs. Judy J. Brooks to teach grade two at the Woodstock Elementary School. She is a graduate of Gould Academy. Mrs. Brooks has no teaching experience and plans to receive her B. S. degree from the University of Maine in August, 1969. She presently resides in Bryant Pond.

In earlier action Monday evening the board accepted the resignation of C. Richard Vaughan as principal of Telstar, and of William Koen as Telstar art teacher. Mr. Vaughan has accepted a position as headmaster at Brewster Academy in Wolfeboro, N. H., while Mr. Koen will pursue studies at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

After much discussion the superintendent was authorized to renew bond and state aid anticipation notes held by the Canal National Bank. A motion to permit borrowing the maximum authorized by District voters was defeated. This would have involved an additional amount of approximately $27,000.

Preliminary approval was granted to a transportation policy that would include a provision prohibiting students enrolled at Telstar from serving as bus drivers in District 44. A more comprehensive recommendation by the transportation committee is expected at the next regular meeting of the board.

The directors authorized the granting of a quit claim deed to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Buck, surrendering any claim the District might have on property adjoining the land occupied by the Telstar facility. The stipulation was made that no cost would be borne by the District.

Mr. Cunningham, new Telstar principal, was introduced to the board members. He stated that he is looking forward to his work in the school system and would have more to say later.

Members of the board not present at the Monday session were: Eddie Snyder, Andover, Don Stecher, Joan Wiese, William Cousins, Bethel; and Richard Melville of Greenwood.

The next regular meeting of the board of directors will be held at Telstar Regional High on Monday evening, Aug. 18.

MR. AND MRS. TEBBETS HONORED ON 50th ANNIVERSARY

A well-known veteran manufacturer in the wood turning industry of Maine, and his wife, were honored Sunday afternoon and evening at a garden buffet in observance of their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Over 100 friends and relatives attended the event honoring Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Tebbets at their Eden Lane home in Bethel.

The event was arranged by the couple's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Tebbets. A social hour was held at their home just across Eden Lane from the guests of honor. This gave everyone an opportunity to meet Mr. and Mrs. Tebbets.

After the social hour the buffet was held under the same colorful marquee that was used at the wedding of Lucy Baines Johnson. The marquee was located on the spacious lawn at the elder Tebbets' home. The caterer was Mrs. Maxine Coy of Minot.

The couple received many gifts including an illuminated scroll on parchment, which was made by the world-famed illuminator, Sol Nodel of New York City. His illuminations are owned by such person-

Letters to the Editor

As I was reading last week's news, I saw this article about the Middle Intervale Church being robbed of lamps.

I could not imagine anyone so disrespectful. So callous of their own well-being that they would steal from God's house.

As I thought about this it came to me they must have been taken for their antique value.

If this is true and you are really looking for something very old. How about coming to church with me Sunday, and looking into the oldest books on record, 39 of them. Your choice of Law, History, Poetry, Major or Minor Prophets, written over a period of 1000 years.

For more detailed information come and read with us.

How about looking up Exodus 20: 15. This was given to Moses by God, alone on a mountain.

Malachi the last book of the Old Testament was written around 400 B. C. Can you find anything more antiquish? And it's all for free. You don't have to take it when no one is looking.

So, let's put the lamps back in church and come and get something much older, by far more valuable. It's the only thing on earth I know of you can take with you when you leave this world.

God's promises. Come and claim them now, and may God Bless You.

Dear Editor,

I wish to add an AMEN to the letter you published a short time ago written by Mr. Roger Hanscom of Newry, in regard to the new law passed by the last legislature that will make it necessary for all municipalities to change their fiscal year to coincide with the state fiscal year.

I was surprised and shocked when I read in the paper that the bill was passed in the waning hours of the legislative session. The bill had been considered earlier in the session and I had thought it was dead the same as many other town officials did, so we did not contact our representatives.

As we study the bill and think of all the effects that it will have on the handling of town business, I am going to recommend that the next special session of the legislature repeal that law.

Most of our small town officials are part-time town officials and earn their living by a full-time job and their town salaries don't figure out to more than fifty cents an hour. Their services are given to see that the town has good government. In the winter and spring they have time to devote to closing books and preparing town reports that they wouldn't have during the busy summer and fall season. Many towns employ auditors in January and February who are doing SAD audits and other audit jobs in the summer. That is just one more problem that looms.

I think the Maine Municipal Association was lax in representing the towns when this legislation was considered. They should take the lead in getting this law repealed.

Sincerely yours,

Fred S. Jenkins

GUIDANCE DEPARTMENT

The third and final installment of the Guidance article on "The Relationship of Guidance to the Community in S. A. D. 44" is presented this week.

Most parents have definite ideas concerning what they want for their children. When they present these ideas to counselors in a realistic way, the information is of great value toward planning and improving the curriculum.

The social-moral aspect of guidance needs parental support. A public relations program that encourages parents to offer suggestions and plan ways of overcoming a problem will reduce the counselor's responsibilities. Parents will support an action program which they feel they have planned, and this parental support is extremely valuable.

Parent group discussions that result in clarification or action are of value in human relations due to the achievement of understanding and support of the schools. The great value lies in the long-range view. To bring people closer together in their relationships is one of the ideals of our society. Through good public relations the guidance department is making a contribution toward the interrelationships ideal.

Inadequate support for school financing can hinder society's development greatly. Parents participate in an efficiently organized guidance department will support the school in its effort to maintain a high standard of guidance services. All parents can and will help to support and plan for good schools when they understand these needs only through an adequate public relations program.

In summarizing it is necessary to recall that good public relations are essential to the welfare of the students. A public relations program that produces satisfactory interviews and confidence is of value to the public by bringing the two parts of his life together—home and school—so that they can better understand each other.

Preconceived ideas and misunderstandings concerning the guidance department may be changed when parents learn more about the department. The mutual confidence which results from satisfactory public relations is valuable to all concerned. With this confidence parents are more willing to accept the policies, practices and proposals. Students accept guidance services more willingly when their parents do also. Parents who understand are able to inform other community members, influence public opinion, and thus help in public relations. Financial support of guidance activities is valuable to all students. Public relations is valuable in helping parents realize that education is an investment in the future of our democracy.

The interview is a specific method used to involve parents in participation. Potentially it becomes a means for sharing and contributing of parents and counselors toward a unique goal—the best for the child. When both counselor and parent are in mutual agreement concerning the means by which this goal can be reached, the values gained are innumerable.

At career nights and college nights parents gain information and thus work with instead of against the counselor due to ignorance of facts. At this current time it is expected that a college night career program will be presented at Telstar Regional High School during this coming year.

The greatest value of good public relations with parent groups lies in the programs achieved through a group discussion which offers many

John Gargileau and friends are up on the Arsenault place to build their house by the big tree.

Last Sunday the Vail reunion was held at Abbott's Beach with about 100 there. John Vail was the oldest and the granddaughter of Macie Turbide was the youngest. We may be able to have it there next year. Sunday was a nice day.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Delano and Cindy, Phebe Farnum, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Pike Jr., and Donald III attended the Delano reunion at Canton Point.

Callers at Roger Farnum's past week have been Milton Mills, Bryant Pond; George Turner, West Paris; Mrs. Vinal Noyes and Son, Dixfield; Mr. and Mrs. Basil Seguin and son, Lewiston; Erwin Child, West Peru; Mr. and Mrs. Learn Child of Houston, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kilgore, Auburn.

Ideas. These parents will staunchly defend a program which they have helped to plan, this is of untold value to the school especially in active social-moral programs.

Participation is an essential ingredient in desirable action by groups. In former years when both schools and communities were smaller, participation was a natural part of school-community relationships. Modern communities and schools have grown larger, and this results in less participation by many parents. Many satisfactions and values result from successfully participating under expert leadership. Parents can enjoy an increased sense of identification with the guidance department. Adequate public relations with parent groups is of great value in explaining the school program, exploring new ideas, and discovering the normal reaction of parents to the guidance program and its services.

An active parent-counselor public relations program is valuable in reaching common objectives by gaining an insight of pupil needs. This is valuation in better vocational planning and improvement of the curriculum for better educational benefits for all students.

A good public relations program creates a good reputation which in turns leads to desirable guidance relationship.

Interesting letters are being received from Beth Andrews, Telstar '69, by her parents and friends. Beth is on a six week tour of the Greek Island of Rhodes and Athens.

To quote from one of her recent letters:

"You wouldn't believe the things we have planned. Friday night we're going to the Wine Festival; we're putting on scenes from the 'Odyssey' in class Friday; Tuesday we're going to Linda's; Wednesday we're going to a 'sound' and 'light' show near the wall of the old city and we'll be going sailing on a big sailboat as soon as it gets here. I wish you could see the sailboats and ships in this harbor.

"Sunday night we went to the disco here. Had a great time.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Buck are moving into the house on Route 26 owned by Joe Berube of Wilson's Mills and known as the Charles Chase place.

Several days of rain washed out some of the roads. On the East B Hill road there is about one-half mile of tar road all washed out leaving deep holes. The road in Grafton near the cemetery was flooded so deep that the road was impassable Wednesday morning of last week. During the day the water went down from 28 inches to six inches. Henry Lane had to get a truck to bring the mail to Upton Wednesday and he said the water came up to the doors of the truck. Back Street was washed some but not badly.

"I'm on the social activity committee with Craig, Drew, and Brayton (Dr. Aldrich's son). (Dr. Aldrich is a lady instructor.)

"After we returned from the disco, eight of us went outside and sang folk songs.

"The beaches are really beautiful—and usually packed. I love swimming in the sea. It's really warm and the waves are a lot of fun—as long as you don't swallow one whole.

"The food is pretty good, too. So far, we've had stuffed eggplant, stuffed tomatoes, steak, chicken, and lamb—among other things. For dessert we can have honeydew melon, watermelon or ice cream, sometimes caramel custard. I'm slowly learning how to eat like a European—fork in left hand, knife in right and not changing them around. It's quite a trick! The waiters have to go to school before they can wait on the guests. One of ours is really a clown.

"I'll say good-bye until later."

GREENWOOD CITY

Mrs. Colista Morgan, Corres. —

My adventures, I suppose, are small and quiet ones, though big enough for me.

Looking from my window there was nothing much to see but rain for most of three days. The view was south and west. Rain hung there like a shimmering curtain veiling the hills. The often repeated phrase was, "Will it never end?" It did and with a quick decision my niece and I decided to dip the water from Boat and take a ride. So with another "wee niece" we set out to Big Pond with a certain contentment that cannot be explained and that some people never find.

The breeze was still a little restless and only now and then did the sun peek through to look on a young and boundless world.

Once, just for a moment or so little dimples of rain drops hit the surface of the water and lightly and softly reminded us that it had not entirely cleared. This didn't matter to us, we just continued on. When nearly to the lower end of the pond we heard the stinging rumble of our "Lower Falls of the Yellow-stone River" in a small hanging valley and although white and foamy at this time, it didn't plunge some 2000 feet or more to its bed below but about twenty.

Again on the spur of a moment we anchored Boat and proceeded through the woods to find it.

The air had a high rich yet subtle perfume. It was a health giving tang of the forest mingled with a rich aroma that swept landward from the pond. There was a somber silence except for the falls, an infinite purity of an atmosphere unpolluted.

Straight up from the pool at its base the bluff rose boldly. Here too, the air changed to a coolness that went to the head with a stinging freshness and made us exclaim.

Now we weren't satisfied to stop here so looked around for a way to get above the falls and the ghostly fingers of spray.

What a time to climb! Wet, but not dangerous at the left of the falls, where the haze hung on blending the odors of the earth and the storm now past which had moved through hours before and enclosed this valley like silver grey wool.

As we mounted the obstacles to higher ground the sound of murmuring water and the shatter of the "wee one" came like sweet music through the firs and beeches along the stream.

Soon we found a log as a bridge to help us cross to the other shore. Between the boulders a thin carpet of moss was spread but the cliff itself was quite naked; seamed and weathered; in places split and shattered from the play of the elements.

Mists drifted up but the falls, was obscured in the petite pocket below. We clung to the cliff like ragged garments and dared not venture down near enough to view the pocket from here because of the slippery conditions.

Retracing our steps across the log and once again to the stream that flowed to the pond, we came across a magic fern garden, minute and beautiful on a single rectangular rock isolated and lonely but more lovely than most because of its setting.

We returned to Boat and up pond — but home? No! We rode Sanborn River which brought the tropical view with the tall grasses and flowers.

After this, we pushed on home, listening to the language of the wind and remembering the murmur of the brooks, only in time, for at Boat's home we were greeted by a whimper of rolling thunder where the tree tops tossed their branches to the sky. Then another rain!

The high water from the rain was over our road in three places besides washing the fill at both ends of Miles Notch Bridge away so no cars could cross. It left three camps of people stranded but all were out by Friday. Then one of the twin bridges over Bull Branch was completely washed down stream so that Mr. Jacques could not get to his camps. The frame of the bridge was hauled on to dry land and will be returned and replanked soon, they hope. As near as could be measured at our station was 5.97 inches from Sunday, July 27, to Aug. 3.
